detachment, calling them fascist pigs. At least one person was injured in a scuffle which broke out below Cadet Hall. At press time, the injured were being treated at the Student Health Center. Looking on as Keyser makes his point is Irsene Sturges.

Protesters March On ROTC

Reaction to recent violence at Kent State University in Ohio sparked a move to takeover Eastern's military science Cadet Hall yesterday, with approximately 250 to 300 students, many of them spectators, converging on the ROTC building.

A minor fire in the Fieldhouse, set by demonstrators, preceded the march on Cadet Hall, and several fights broke out during the course of the confrontation, but, at press time, no real violence had begun.

Several fire alarms were turned in around campus, clearing many of the buildings, but all except the Fieldhouse turned out to be false.

After the demonstration appeared to break up, a bomb threat, second one of the week, was telephoned to college authorities, this time threatening the Science Building. Details were not available at press time.

Cheney police were called to remain in the area on a standby basis by Campus Safety Director Alan Shaw. One student involved in the fighting was taken by police to the student infirmary, where he was treated for cuts.

Demonstrating students attempted to lower the flag beside the building, already at half mast in sympathy with the four students killed at Kent State, and the first fight started.

About a dozen students were involved, scuffling down the hill beside the building.

Milling demonstrators in front of Cadet Hall brought out Colonel Andy Pribnow, ROTC commander at Eastern, who received tremendous verbal abuse but managed to remain calm.

When asked about the Kent State violence, in which National Guardsmen opened fire on demonstrating students killing four, Col. Pribnow answered,

"You did it, you asked for it."

When several students tried to engage him in a dissertation on communism, Col. Pribnow replied, "You wouldn't get away with this in Russia," referring to the protest demonstration.

The demonstration began in front of the Student Union Building where a microphone was set up and several students called for the takeover of Cadet Hall. Approximately 400 students and faculty listened to the many speakers, including Associated Students President Bob VanSchoorl trying to dissuade the group from violence.

"We're sorry for what happened at Kent State. We don't want that happening here. The flag will be lowered to half-mast."

Thomas Chambers, assistant professor of sociology, sided with students, saying, "We must seek a world in which love becomes the guiding principle. . . None of us are in control unless we take control."

Although the demonstration was not a "concentrated action of the Black Student Union," according to BSU President Al Sims, many of the prominent figures of the BSU were at the head of the demonstrators, and the confrontations seemed at times to divide on black-white lines.

Jim Bell, BSU vice-president, said to one of the white students involved in the fighting, "I'm not confronting whites, I'm confronting the military."

Other supporters of the demonstration were members of the Committee for Peace in Vietnam and Socialist Workers, said Sims. "Involvement by BSU members is personal," Sims said. "Some of us feel strongly about Kent State."

However, Sue Wamsley, CPVN president, said her group did not officially participate in the events of the day.

Daryl Hagie, dean of students, said, in response to the action, "Any kind of violence is not going to make it. This kind of thing will only hasten the backlash."

When asked about police intervention Hagie said, "We will deal with developments as they occur. Violence and disruption will have to be dealt with."

Cambodia Topic of Teach-In American military operations in Cambodia will be discussed in a "teach-in" today on the Showalter lawn.

Larry Keyser, member of the Committee for Peace in Vietnam, said the teach-in at 10:30 a.m. will feature discussions by David Bell and Joseph Schuster, both assistant professors of political science, as well as group discussions of participants.

The teach-in, which has the sanction if not active support of the administration, is being sponsored by an "emergency faculty-student committee" organized by CPVN members, although not sponsored by the CPVN itself.

The teach-in is in reaction to President Richard Nixon's recent decision to send American troops into Cambodia, Keyser said.

Henry-York Steiner, dean of undergraduate studies, said he has sent a memo to all faculty informing them of the teach-in. Participation by both students and faculty will be a matter of "individual conscience," Steiner said.

The administration views the teach-in as similar to the Martin Luther King funeral anniversary held last fall, Steiner said, during which classes were excused at the discretion of individual instructors.

He said the teach-in "has legitimacy" in the eyes of the administration as an "educational activity."

Keyser said a petition will be circulated today around the campus and at the teach-in which denounces President Nixon's "expansion of the Vietnam war into Cambodia on the pretense of defending a military dictatorship."

Keyser said copies of the petition will be sent to United States Senators Warren Magnuson and Henry Jackson, U.S. Representative Tom Foley, Governor Daniel Evans and the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

A telegram of similar nature will be sent to President Nixon, signed by any student who wishes his name added to it, Keyser said.

One of the speakers, Dave Bell, whose academic specialty is southeast Asia, predicted during Peace Week, almost two weeks prior to President Nixon's announcement, that U.S. troops would soon be in Cambodia.

His talk will be on the "History of the Cambodian Development."

Schuster, whose specialty is constitutional law, will speak on the effects the Cambodian development will have in the U.S.

NO CAUSE FOR VIOLENCE

Yesterday's demonstration against the ROTC building made clear a point that has become increasingly more evident in recent years. That point is that those on opposite sides of an issue refuse to listen to one another.

Speeches in front of the Student Union Building and the flag pole incident near Cadet Hall in which one student was injured are clear examples of this trend to be hostile against another's views if those views are in opposition to ones own.

One of the most vital prerequisites for a society to survive is that those who live within that society must be able to communicate to one another the great diversity of opinion that they hold.

We cannot profess to seek a society based on solid democratic principles in which each man is allowed to speak his opinion on an issue, if we fail to respect his right to his opinion and hear him out.

There are those in this country who are very much opposed to the war in Southeast Asia. There are those that support it. Within this country those on both sides of this issue, or any issue for that matter, are able to vigorously state their views on their position.

However, those on the opposite side of such issues have turned to shouting down one another instead of hearing each other out and then expressing an opposite opinion.

If we are going to speak of democratic principles, of a right to free speech, of humanity towards one another, then we must adopt a willingness to respect one another and to communicate with one another so that the ever widening gulf that separates those of opposing viewpoints can be bridged.

WAR TOPIC OF TEACH IN

Many students will participate today in a teach-in on the recent expansion of the Vietnam war into Cambodia.

This step of President Richard Nixon, taken at a crucial time when America was just beginning to see light in the abyss of an unpopular war, could very well be the next-to-the-last step toward a declared war in Southeast Asia. The last step will be the declaration of war itself.

The teach-in, while it probably will not provide President Nixon with the solution to the war, can serve to inform students of the severity of the problem.

Regardless of one's views on the war, or on President Nixon's policies, each student and faculty member should take the time to discuss on an intelligent level the ramifications of this latest development in the war.

Only through reasonable discussion with all views represented, can we expect to have an informed public, and only through an informed public can we expect a democratic government to reflect the will of the people.

An informed public told Lyndon Johnson America would not tolerate a war in Vietnam, only an informed public can convince Richard Nixon America will not tolerate the same in Cambodia.

ALL TOGETHER NOW

To all those responsible for the pre-registration fee deferment -- THANK YOU.

The new deferred payment procedure came about as the result of a student, Chas Davies, appearing before the Board of Trustees and pointing out the difficulty some students have of raising money for tuition fees at the end of the school year.

The situation becomes even more difficult with the new fee raise to $120. Also some students register for summer quarter at nearly the same time, thus compounding the situation.

As a result wheels turned in the computer center, business office and registrars office.

In a time when confrontations between the "establishment" and student interests seem to be at a peak, it is heartening to see cooperation as well.

Would it not be nice if this was the beginning of a new era in the student versus bureaucracy conflict that is so often voiced?

Ernie Who?

Editor:

At last we have seen the ultimate in arrogance in the clenched-fist controversy. Those who believed that the black athletes of Eastern had achieved that less than meritorious distinction need only read the letter from Mr. Ernie Gare in the April 29 issue of the Easterner.

According to Gare, the athletic director at the University of Notre Dame (at Nelson, not to be confused with the Notre Dame University), the proper prerequisites for political expression for athletes are (1) eminence in their sport and (2) originality.

It is simply impossible to see any reason in this assertion, unless there is in fact some connection between proficiency in a non-political function and the ability to protest politically in a given way, or unless there is no utility in unity within a political movement. When you boil it down to its essence you find that Gare's position is that of a snob.

Suppose that we were to impose on Mr. Gare the same standard that he would impose on Eastern's black athletes. Perhaps we might say to him something like: "Go away and don't trouble us with your political views, Athletic Director Gare, until you've achieved at least the prominence in athletics of your namesake institution in Indiana."

'Tis strange that athletic coaches, athletic directors, and the like feel so qualified to instruct students, especially their athletes, in politics, even to the point that they would restrict participation if their views of politics are not adhered to.

'Tis even stranger that administrations, boards of trustees, faculties, and students listen to them seriously and act favorably upon their wishes. I wonder if I would get as much favorable attention if I should turn my classes into skull sessions on playing football. Chances are I would be fired.

Unfortunately coaches and athletic directors don't have that worry.

Lecture Noted

Editor:

At the recent lecture of Arthur Clarke I was fortunate to have a seat behind one of our school's reporters. It happened to be the student who was supposed to be reviewing the renowned writer's lecture. I noticed the skimpy notes taken in the first ten minutes of the lecture. I also noticed that this "reporter" fell asleep after the first ten minutes.

I thought there must be another reporter present so that Eastern's paper could have good coverage of this fascinating presentation. When I saw the write-up, I realized I was wrong.

The few skimpy notes of the first ten minutes were expanded into a wordy article and the rest of the lecture was ignored.

Certainly there must be a more competent reporter to send to cover such an important event!

Congratulations!

Editor:

In view of the rising interest in studies of other ethnic groups, the Speech Club wants to congratulate the speech department for introducing a new course in "Oral Interpretation of Black Literature." This course will concentrate on the interpretation of black literature and also introduce ethnic literature of other groups.

We are happy to see that the speech department recognizes the need for reappraisal of the curriculum and the addition of new and vital courses.

Is It Art?

Editor:

I would like to express to the Hargreaves Gallery, the art department, or whatever authority is so deserving and responsible, my unending amazement of their expert (?) guidance and enlightenment as to what constitutes "art".

In ignorance, I almost destroyed an object d'art at my home. The collection of "art" now on exhibit in the center of the Gallery is almost identical in content and structure to the assemblage of my family's daily "Earth Day" collection efforts.

My biggest quandary now is: Do I move this art treasure to the living room for all to enjoy, or do I leave it in the garage in its natural habitat until the next trash collection?

You, too, should view the "art" on display at Hargreaves. Perhaps you also have an "art treasure" unappreciated in your garage or trash bin!

No Record

Editor:

Ever try to check out a record from the music library? Well, don't; they don't "allow" students to check them out without permission from an instructor. And don't ask why; the only answer you will get is that it is against policy—against who's policy, I couldn't find out. Maybe you can.

I wonder if they really think their records are worth so much

I guess every AVP is entitled to at least one big success during his term, and it looks like mine was last Friday night.

Despite some dire predictions from a few of my rock-fan friends, the Cowsills concert was nothing short of great. The Fieldhouse was almost completely full and the people in all those seats were really enjoying themselves.

This week marks the annual celebration of the Eighth of May, with all the attendant pre and post-functions.

The annual street dance, sponsored by Dryden, will be held in the Woodward Field parking lot at about nine, but this year, there is an A.S. sponsored FREE Watermelon Bust in the same area beginning about six p.m.

All the watermelon you can eat will be waiting in a big pool of ice water, so please wear grubbies.

The principal activity at this event will be the crowning of Miss Watermelon Bust who we hope to award with something appropriate.

May I remind you again, please wear grubs, these events sometimes get a little wet. You'll have plenty of time to go home, hose off and dress and be back for the dance.

Now that the weather is nice again and everyone's outdoors, we can schedule more outdoor events and our biggest one for this year will be our "Grass Concert" on Sunday afternoon, May 17.

We already have a contract for Super Band from Seattle and are negotiating for one or two more. It's sort of a mini Woodstock where you can just lay around on the grass and groove to with the sun and music. Save that date.

Mexican Study Scheduled

Study in Mexico will be the topic of an open seminar discussion at 2 p.m. in Bali Lounge today.

Eastern, in cooperation with Western and Central Washington State Colleges has initiated a full-time extension school in Mexico to began fall quarter, said Dr. William Russel, assistant dean of special programs.

The three state colleges have a contract with the University of the Americas in Mexico to provide instruction and physical space. The campus is south of Mexico City near Puebla and is a "very modern" facility, said Russel.

Three Eastern instructors who will be involved in the program, and Dr. Joseph Chatburn, dean of special programs, and Russel will provide information and answer questions concerning the program.

Slides taken by Chatburn and Russel on a recent visit to Mexico and the University of the Americas campus will be shown.

Students will have the opportunity to spend up to a year studying in Mexico with American and Mexican professors, said Russel.

"Initially the program will be limited to 30 students," said Russel. "As May 18 is the deadline for pre-registration I would encourage students to come and hear about the program."

Also anyone interested in the program may contact Chatburn or Russel at the office of special programs, Showalter 307, Russel said.

Letters to the Editor

that they are better off sitting on a shelf rather than being used and enjoyed by someone. I'm willing to bet that the average cost of a record there is less than the average cost of a book in the main library.

It also seems quite costly to stock a library with records that sit there, hoping some music instructor will require it to be listened to. I'd be greatly surprised if over one-fourth of those records ever got off a shelf in the length of a year, and if over one-half have ever been played through more than once.

Why this "policy"? I don't think it is because the records might be broken or stolen. If it were, they could handle it like the main library does—with fines.

No, I really think it is because it would be a bit more work, checking them out, stamping the card, filing it and reversing the procedure when it is returned. (The records already have the cards on them—no names from being checked out, but the card is there anyway.)

I issue a challenge to the music majors and minors to change this. No changes take place without someone doing the changing. Don't you, of all people, want to use the records in that library? Well, then, express yourself—to your music professors and administration, and in your music organizations. I am quite certain that students in other fields that use books at the main library would be doing something if they were not allowed to check books out. Speak up! Do something! I've tried and I'm not a music major.

Sharolynn Harwood

Ah, Solitude!

Editor:

"The quiet atmosphere of the library is ideal for study." I don't know where this rumor originated: probably a group of loiterers, who had nothing better to do, came to the conclusion discussing it around a central table in the library; or maybe two lovers, taking advantage of one of the more remote corners, discovered it; perhaps a couple of old friends meeting in the library to "catch up" started the rumor. Well I would like to stop it.

If eating, drinking, and smoking were allowed in the main sections of the library, we would have no need for the Harbor, and we could cease construction on the new SUB. IDEAL MEETING PLACE: JFK Memorial Library.

I spend three hours a day cleaning in the library and I am thankful that I can go back to study in the peace and tranquility of my room in the dorm.

Play Opens

A four-day run of Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology" will open tonight at 8:15 in Showalter Auditorium.

Four men and four women fill the cast of the play, which was adapted from a collection of Master' poems. Sharing the billing will be Nancy Giger, Mary Jean Lubbers, Karen Miller and Mary Monk, along with James Eaton, Randy Hannah, James Herrmann and Ronald Sydow.

Admission is free to Eastern students with identification cards, but reservations should be made in advance by calling the drama department at 359-2459 on weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

R. Boyd Devin chairman of Eastern's drama department is directing the play, with Susie Sausser acting as assistant director and publicity manager.

Center Planned For Badger Lake

A conference and instructional center at Badger Lake may be developed by Eastern.

There is a push to develop some 21 acres of land owned by the college at the nearby lake, said William Russel, assistant dean of special programs.

The college acquired the property several years ago for a minimal fee and until recently there was no definite plans for development, said Russel.

An ad hoc committee with Russ Hartman, assistant business manager as chairman, was formed soon after the property was acquired to do minor development work.

Boy Scouts under John Lothspeich, assistant to the president, put in quite a little time clearing the land and building the dock, said Hartman.

According to Hartman, his committee passed their responsibility for the property to the office of special programs this year.

"We just let the contract to fence the property," said Russel. "Our eventual goal, though, is to develop the property into the instructional and conference center originally envisioned by Patterson."

Jazz Musian, Stage Band To Appear in Concert Here

Gary Burton, young jazz vibraharpist, will join Eastern's Band in a concert next Tuesday, at 8:15 p.m. in Showalter Auditorium. Admission is free.

Eastern's Concert Band, directed by James Albert, assistant professor of music, will perform for the first half of the program, then Burton will be the featured soloist with the stage band in the second half.

In his early 20s, Burton has been a professional since he was 17, and at 19 toured South America with his own quartet. Then he toured the Far East with George Shearing, for whom he wrote an album of original music which was recorded by the Shearing Quartet.

After serving for a time with Stan Getz, he was then the featured percussionist with Dick Schory and the Percussion Pops Orchestra, both on records and tours. Following this he formed his own group.

Burton now has four albums to his credit, "New Vibe Man in Town," "Who Is Gary Burton?," "Three in Jazz" and "The Swinging' Sound of Music."

Burton will also present a clinic for percussionists starting at 2 p.m. Tuesday in Showalter Auditorium. Interested students, teachers and musicians are welcome to attend, Albert said.

A feature of the program will be that all compositions will be by living composers, Albert said. The Eastern Concert Band will feature works by Darius Milhaud, Robert Jager and Dmitri Shostakovitch; Burton and Eastern's Stage Band will play compositions by Art Lauer, Les Hooper, Eddy Evans and Henry Mancini.

As living goes more electric... you can see the future happening.

One thing certain about the better home of tomorrow is that it will be even more electric.

Because electricity is the energy of progress. It has played a big part in turning yesterday into a better today, and you know it will have an even bigger role in turning today into an even better tomorrow.

It's significant that today the U.S.A. is by far the most electric nation in the world—and the best place in the world to live.

And while the price of almost everything else has been going up, the average unit price paid for residential electricity has been dropping over the years.

As your investor-owned electric company works to give you the best electric service today, it's working at the same time to make your future better, too.

Sen. Jackson Closes IFC Week

"The Challenge to Our Environment" was the topic of a talk given by Senator Henry M. Jackson at a benefit breakfast last Saturday.

Jackson's talk, which closed Collegiate Week activities, was presented before a small audience in the Student Union Building while a handful of demonstrators from the Committee for Peace in Vietnam picketed outside.

Jackson's talk was concerned with the problems faced in our environment and possible solutions to these problems.

The number one priority, said Jackson, is to set a terminal date for the elimination of air pollution, as there is an "overall need for a quality life and a clean environment."

He said an overriding policy is necessary to control the 133 million tons of pollutants that escape into the air each year, and cited the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 as an effective way of controlling pollution by the federal government.

The number two priority is the elimination of population concentration, said Jackson. As population becomes more congested, air and water pollution is compounded and violence increases. "There is a need to redistrict population into smaller communities," said Jackson.

Following the talk there was a question and answer period in which Jackson was asked his views on the effect the Cambodia situation would have on Nixon's popularity.

"Nothing succeeds like success," said Jackson. "It's too early to tell. If the move speeds up troop withdrawal then Nixon's move will be successful."

To the question of whether Indians should be given non-used federal lands, Jackson answered that claims should be granted on the basis of a cash settlement. He was against giving Fort Lawton to the Indians as he felt it should be converted to a park. "The Indians want it solely for themselves — not for everyone."

Jackson was also asked about the oil drilling in Puget Sound. If the drillers put in derricks and impede navigation, said Jackson, then the federal government will have authority and drillers must go to the "corp of engineers" to secure a drilling permit. If, however, the oil is slant drilled from the shore, there is no government jurisdiction as the state owns the tidelands.

Jackson expressed his willingness to cooperate with the Russians in the space program and also favors continuing talks and student exchanges with Russia. "Knowledge is power," said Jackson as he concluded.

The proceeds from Jackson's talk, as well as the receipts from the other Collegiate Week activities, went to the special Olympics fund. Nearly $400 was netted from the week-long events, said Ron Hannes, a coordinator of the Interfraternity Council - Panhellenic sponsored Collegiate Week.

Council Grants Funds to Coach

Two heated debates arose on separate issues last week as the Associated Students Council settled a month-long dispute and were faced with a division of opinion on a new issue.

Council voted to allot $1,100 to the Athletic Department, to be added to the sum they had previously allotted more than a month ago, finally settling the issue that had reoccurred before Council twice following the initial request.

No decision could be reached, however, on the appointment of a new attorney general following Steve Hyde's resignation.

Faced with the problem of outstanding debts which required payment, Council voted to allot the $1,100 from a request by the athletic department for $2,050.

Debate on the issue became heated as the extremes for the request ranged from allotting the entire request to allotting none at all. Treasurer Bill Kelley and Executive Vice-President Clint Hill were the two strongest proponents of allotting at least most of the funds, and Streeter Representative Ray Grimes and EVP-elect Ellis were the most vigorous opponents to the proposed request.

Hill, who brought a prepared breakdown of expenditures, one in which he himself had carefully gone over with Athletic Director Brent Wooten, requested that at least half the funds be given to the department.

Noting a need to pay existing debts, Kelley admonished Council that "one way or another we have to do something tonight, it's been put off too long." He pointed out that he had a number of vouchers which needed signing but which could not be without funds.

Ellis rejected the idea that Council had to make a decision on the funds. Referring to the fact that Council had already rejected their request twice he said, "it is ridiculous and ludicrous if we pay them, they can lose a hundred times and only have to win once."

A move to amend the request to $610 with the stipulation that the athletic department be allowed to draw up to $2,050 on next years budget passed by a 9-3 vote with one abstention, but a few moments later a new amendment to allot $1,100 with the rest charged against next years budget succeeded the previous amendment by an 11-3 vote.

In the second major heated debate during the night Hill recommended Ellis for the post of attorney general to replace Hyde who resigned, but met stiff opposition from a number of Council members including President Bob VanSchoorl.

The issue came to a head when Hyde was recommended to replace Ellis on the A.S. Judicial Board. Ellis resigned from the board to become eligible for attorney general.

VanSchoorl, in making known his opposition, said he "did not like the method going on here, it keeps going back and forth."

The appearance that Ellis had previously agreed to switch posts was put down by Hyde when he said, "I resigned two weeks ago and I didn't know about Bruce wanting the job until yesterday morning (April 21). I'm not trying to throw anything over on anybody."

The issue was tabled until tonight's meeting because a majority of the members wanted to look at the question a little more closely before making a decision.

Impeachment of Justices Begun By Student Petition

Impeachment proceedings have begun against three associate justices of the Associated Students' Judicial Board.

A petition to begin proceedings against Chief Justice Julie Mortier and Associate Justices Nancy Menzes and John Bowman has been filed with Executive Vice President Clint Hill.

N. Edward Woodell, former student court judge, circulated the petition charging the three with violating several sections of the A.S. judicial code.

The A.S. constitution requires 100 signatures or a majority vote of Council to begin impeachment proceedings. Woodell's petition has 100 valid signatures, said Hill.

The petition will be presented to Council tonight, and the date for the hearing by a committee of the whole will be set then.

Criminal charges have also been filed against the three, as well as Bruce Ellis, EVP-elect and former associate justice. Ellis removed himself from danger of impeachment when he resigned to apply for attorney general, a post he did not receive confirmation to by Council.

Charges of conspiracy, depriving a defendant of his right to be present at all proceedings, right of appeal and operating outside the scope of their authority stem from the fall quarter trial of Wain Miller, then A.S. publicity agent and Off Campus Commuter president.

Woodell defended Miller of the charge of contempt of court. Miller was found guilty of the charges which were based on his failure to abide by an injunction issued by the judicial board.

Woodell said the board did not have the power to issue an injunction, since it is not a court of equity.

When Miller petitioned the court for a new trial, the court decided in closed executive session not to grant the trial.

Woodell said this violated Miller's right to be present at all proceedings in his case, guaranteed by the judicial code.

Also, by not hearing Miller, the court violated his right to appeal new evidence, Woodell said.

Conviction in the impeachment proceedings requires a two-thirds majority vote from Council. Criminal charges will be heard in student court, said Hill.

RCA SPECTRA 70/45 Computer does its stuff in the basement of Kennedy Auditorium. A recent controversy has raged over the use of Eastern's computer systems by students and administrators. This computer was installed last November.

Computer Center Services Modern

Is the one way street utilized in front of Martin Hall?

This is one question the new RCA Spectra 70/45 computer might be asked is assisting Eastern's management division in the near future.

The computer installed last November is part of a six phase program in which the computer equipment is upgraded.

The Spectra 70/45 is one of the new breed of third generation RCA computers with operating systems that cover a wide range of tape/disc routines. These include executive, file control processor, media to media conversions, FORTRAN IV, assembly system monitor control, Report Program generator, communication control, COBOL, sort/merge, diagnostic and library maintenance.

"The new computer allows us to begin work on a management information system," said Wade Harris, director of data processing.

"We could not have begun the process sooner because the 1640 computer used in the past was not capable of this work since it did not offer the FORTRAN IV or COBOL languages," he said. Because of the largeness of the machine, more complex work can be handled by the computer thus providing for faster service. Also its size allows data processing to keep up with the increased work load which results from the increase in students.

"With the RCA computer we could define degree requirements, provide better service to students, faculty and the administration," said Harris. "Having this available cuts down on the line of registration and counseling. Students would have more time to spend with their counselor because this gives him the tools and the student the tools to register."

Harris said that records are kept daily on what the computer is doing. The computer offers three runs a day for the academic community, one at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

EW Students Aid Alcoholics During Spokane Internship

"Could I help an alcoholic? That is hard to say," said Gary Billesbach, a senior in social work.

Billesbach is one of four Eastern students who are completing their third quarter in a social work internship program at the Evaluation Center, Spokane -- rehabilitation center for alcoholics. The program, in its second year of operation, is fostered by the Spokane Coordinating Council on Alcoholism.

"The internship program familiarizes the students with the facilities the alcoholic's need," said Professor Ralph G. Connor, sociology. Students involved in the program include Tracy Hall, Sheila Jones, Clifford Garver and Billesbach.

"Five-hundred men went through the alcoholic rehabilitation center during the past three years and we (Hall Jones, Garver and Billesbach) wanted to find out from which agencies these men received assistance," said Billesbach. The long list of agencies included Salvation Army, Public Assistance and St. Vincent De Paul.

Billesbach said the social work interns surveyed each of the agencies to discover whether or not the alcoholics had kept appointments with assigned agencies, and if they arrived at the appointments sober or not. He added that the purpose of the research was to find out who had received help and if the alcoholics had been into the agencies.

"This was the first time something like this was done," he said. "The agencies had not been working hand-in-hand and we hoped to cure this problem through the survey."

The research report, which was completed at the end of winter quarter this year, was sent to Olympia, Washington.

"The Evaluation Center, born five years ago, receives major funding from the State Health Department," said Dr. Connor, who is also the research consultant to the State Health Department. Working in conjunction with the center's rehabilitation program are two halfway houses, The Frank A. Shaw House and the Westbrook House, both located on west eighth street in Spokane.

"An alcoholic goes to the evaluation center if he needs care," said Dr. Connor. Usually the alcoholic comes to the center upon his own reconnaissance. However, some are prompted by family or friends.

Dr. Connor said that the alcoholic receives "extensive counseling" for a 10 day period at the Evaluation Center before he is assigned to a halfway house.

"The individual stays at the halfway house up to three months, or more, depending on the condition and rate of his recovery," said Connor.

Currently, Billesbach and the three other social work majors are conducting interviews with alcoholics on Mondays at the Shaw House in order to learn how to associate with a person who has a problem.

"We discuss different things with the alcoholics...we ask questions of them and they ask questions of us," said Billesbach. He added that the interviews are not counseling jobs which makes the alcoholic feel obligated to talk about his problem, but rather rediscussions which allow the alcoholics the opportunity to bring their feelings into the open.

"I see people not typically of the skid row nature, but rather the misfortunates in life, and just to talk to them is something," he said.

After graduation, Billesbach plans to enter into social work involving teenagers. He said he enjoyed working with the alcoholics, but would prefer to work with the teenagers because "it's easier to deal with a person than a disease."

AUSA Blood Drive Begins Today to Replenish Supply

Eastern's Reserve Officers Training Corps are sponsoring a blood drive in Bali Lounge from 8:45 to 3 p.m. today and tomorrow. The blood collected will be put in Eastern's account at the Spokane blood bank.

Last year the fall and spring blood drives netted 475 pints of blood. The goal for this year is 612 pints with 312 pints already collected. Anyone connected with the college, whether student, faculty or administrator, or anyone directly related to someone who is, may draw on the Eastern account.

There is a $7 service charge. Otherwise, there is a $25 replacement charge per unit for blood used.

The blood is credited to Eastern's account, but is only good for twelve months. For that reason blood must be donated every year or the account will become depleted.

Almost anyone can donate blood and it takes only a few minutes for the donor to give blood. Ron Aldridge, ROTC student, said he urges everyone to donate blood, and help the ROTC and Sponse Corps reach their goal.

"CRITICAL UNIVERSITY" a traveling information center on such assorted topics as pollution, population, women's liberation and others, visits Eastern on its tour of college campuses across the United States. Manned by four ex-students, Jay Bolton, Doug Morton, Mike McKinney and Mrs. Marcia Johnston, the bus started in Michigan and travels with support from local organizations which sympathize with their cause.

Prof Automates Student Response

After putting into effect an idea he has held in the back of his mind for about three years, John Bruntlett of the industrial arts department finds he must now change his classroom preparation to keep up with his teaching machine.

Nicknamed STREEQ-1 (anagram for Student Response Equipment), the machine is designed to expedite the instructor's feedback on student response to questioning. STREEQ presently is capable of registering up to twenty individual student responses on multiple choice questions with four options and indicates the per cent of responses for each choice.

Bruntlett's first experiments have been in review sessions and the immediate response analysis shows if the material has been sufficiently grasped or if further instruction is necessary.

"I didn't anticipate all the problems that go along with the set up," said Bruntlett. "I've really got to be on my toes and anticipate any problems that may arise. Preparation involves much more work now."

Bruntlett uses an overhead projector to present the multiple choice questions to the class. Each student makes his selection by adjusting the dial indicator to the dial choice, one through four, corresponding to his choice of answers on the screen.

As the decisions are made, STREEQ registers each on a light panel with twenty columns of four lights each. A light comes on in each column corresponding to the selection made by the student on his control unit.

The instructor is immediately able to survey the results and determine his next step. He can see what mistakes were made and clarify the material according to the problems indicated by the incorrect responses. The danger of overlooking an individual's problem that is always present in oral discussion is eliminated as is the time lapse that accompanies the evaluation of written exams, Bruntlett said. Immediate action can be taken on current problems.

Bruntlett has determined in advance the acceptable per centage of correct answers. If this percentage, usually 75, is surpassed no further action is taken. If the results fall below the acceptable mark the incorrect responses are analyzed and discussion goes from there.

The per centage of students responding to each option is registered on what appears at first to be a speedometer above the light panel. By adjusting a dial on the right of the light panel to correspond to one of the four rows of possible options Bruntlett sets the percentage indicator in motion and the per cent of students responding to each option is registered on the dial.

He said he constructed STREEQ for his own use and to show industrial arts majors what they might do on a low budget to improve their teaching and create student interest. He estimated the machine cost about $175 to design and put together. The more sophisticated commercial equipment will run about $2,000.

Bruntlett, who plans to leave Eastern this year, said STREEQ will remain with the department but plans are being made for more sophisticated details when the opportunity presents itself for the construction of STREEQ-II.

Hall Plans Anniversary

Senior Hall will celebrate its 50th anniversary with an open house tea on May 17, said Cathy Merrill, president of Senior Hall.

The tea will be held for invited guests of the girls in Senior's formal lounge from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.. President Emerson C. Shuck, the deans, and Mrs. Eva Conner, house mother of Senior Hall, will be present at the tea, said Miss Merrill.

Open house will also be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Mrs. V.P. Campbell of Newport, Washington, former resident of Senior, is expected to return to visit her room, said Miss Merrill. Mrs. Campbell helped celebrate Senior's first anniversary in 1921.

EW Student Plans Benefit Horseback Ride for Orphans

A special project by an Eastern senior majoring in recreation and park administration has turned into a benefit for the five minor children of a Davenport couple killed in an accident between Davenport and Reardan.

Harry D. Rodenbough of Harrington is the student planning a competitive and pleasure horseback trail ride May 23 to benefit the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dennison. They range in age from 11 to 17.

Rodenbough, who broke horses for both Grant and his brother, Dan Dennison, had planned a competitive ride as a special class project in recreation. While plans were underway, the Dennisons met their tragic death, so Rodenbough, with permission from Thorne Tibbitts, director of Eastern's recreation and park administration program, decided to turn the affair into a benefit for the Dennison children.

The benefit will consist of both a competitive and pleasure ride from Porcupine Bay to Miles (Old Fort Spokane), a five hour horseback trip covering 18 to 20 miles. The competitive ride is for 12 to 19 year-olds, and the $5 entry fee will be used for the benefit of the Dennison children, Rodenbough said.

The pleasure ride is open to all interested persons, and there is no charge, Rodenbough said. Pleasure riders will be asked for contributions, and there will be a barbecue served at the end of the ride.

Merchants in Lincoln County will be asked to sponsor competitive riders, and it is hoped that contributions of food will make the barbecue a money-making proposition, Rodenbough said. The barbecue will be supervised by his mother, Mrs. William E. Rodenbough, who operates the Challenger Cafe in Harrington. Persons not on the ride are invited to the barbecue at the Old Fort Spokane campgrounds.

All interested persons are invited to join either ride. Rodenbough has applications, which will be available in area saddle shops.

Noise Called Pollution

Eastern's students have heard in the past few weeks speakers telling of the dangers of too much industrial waste in the air, too much waste in our streams, too much destruction of natural features, too many cars, too many people.

The threat of noise exposure, said Dr. Marvin Craig, assistant professor of audiology, is that once the danger level is reached, the cochlea, or nerves within the hearing organ, suffer damage because they are overworked.

The effects of noise are increased in proportion to the volume of the sound and the duration of the exposure he said, so that lengthy or repeated exposure can be as harmful as shorter exposure to louder sounds.

Dr. Craig said persons suffering from the effects of noise exposure first become aware that a problem exists when they begin having difficulty in understanding speech, particularly a woman's voice in the high frequency range where the hearing loss occurs. The distortion is most noticeable when there are interfering noises such as another person speaking.

There are symptoms of hearing loss immediately after the exposure but most people are unaware of what they indicate, said Dr. Craig. When a person has left the area of noise and enters a relatively silent situation there will be a ringing in the ears or a sense of being closed off with a rushing sound similar to that of holding a sea shell near the ear. If this symptom is present, hearing loss has occurred.

There are many areas other than industry where people are in danger of noise exposure. "I would wager there is hearing loss on every member of the rifle team," said Dr. Craig, "unless they have taken the precaution of wearing protective devices."

Asked about the danger from the live band sounds listened to by today's youth, he said it depends on the volume of the music, the nearness of the person and the duration of exposure, but some loss is likely for many of the listeners and almost a sure thing for the musicians.

Jobs Daughters To Meet Here

Approximately 1,300 girls will arrive on Eastern's campus June 10 for a four day convention of the Job's Daughters, a service organization for young women sponsored by the Masons, said William Russel, assistant dean of special programs.

June 8 through 14 has been designated Job's Daughters Week by Washington Governor Dan Evans.

The girls, ranging in age from 12 to 20 years old, will come from both sides of the Cascades for the annual convention and the formal convening of the Grand Bethel, governing body for the state organization.

Next year's Grand Bethel will be elected and installed at the convention. Candidates for office will come from local bethels, or units, which consist of girls who have fathers, uncles, or grandfathers who are Masons, Russel said.

There will also be drill team and choir competition between the individual bethels. Awards for the winners will be presented at a special ceremony during the convention, said Russel.

Housing will be provided in vacant dormitories on campus.

Ending the four day convention will be a dance by a Seattle band, the Springfield Rifle, Russel said.

Martin Cleared By Bomb Threat

"There is a bomb in Martin Hall. We want the building, not the people."

With these words Monday morning an anonymous female caller set off a chain of events already once performed this quarter.

The Cheney Police and Fire Departments were notified, Martin Hall and the Campus School were evacuated and a search begun for the bomb.

As it turned out, there was no bomb but this was not known at the time the request was received. Because of this factor of uncertainty, Campus Safety Director Alan Shaw said, all precautions had to be taken.

When the call was received at 11:20 by Betty Hanenburg, secretary to college President Emerson C. Shuck, classes were dismissed in Martin and the building cleared.

When the building was searched and no bomb found, 12:40 classes were resumed.

Shaw was pessimistic about identifying the caller. "There isn't much we can do, unless the person starts bragging," he said.

A previous call at the beginning of this quarter started similar proceedings, with similar results, in Patterson Hall. No arrest was made in that case either.

A Bigger EvCo

Whitworth College's announced withdrawal from the Evergreen Conference apparently will not hamper the growth plans of the league, as the expectation is that seven teams will play under the EvCo banner in 1971-72.

This fall Southern Oregon will make its debut into the conference and the following year, though not official, it is certain that three other Oregon teams will seek admittance. The expected applicants are Eastern Oregon State College, LeGrande, Oregon College of Education, Monmouth, and Oregon Tech., Klamath Falls.

Whitworth, fearing the run-away growth of the three State schools now in the EvCo, (Eastern, Western and Central) decided to move to the Northwest League in 1971-2. The Northwest is composed of small private schools (Lewis and Clark College, Pacific University, Willamette, Pacific Lutheran, Whitman, College of Idaho and Lindfield), and Whitworth feels they will be more able to compete with teams closer to their own size.

Eastern Athletic Director Brent Wooten stated, after inquiries by this column, "I think it's a definite forgone conclusion that it (the conference expansion) will happen."

"In fact, the Oregon Tech. Athletic Director has already cancelled his 1971-2 schedule and has requested that he be scheduled with the Evergreen teams," Wooten said.

The announcement of the application of the three additional Oregon schools is expected at any time and EvCo members will probably submit a formal invitation at the conference's regular monthly meeting, May 22-3.

Wooten has been a strong advocate of league expansion. "We've hated the four-team conference. It's just no good. The seven-team league will be much better," he said. "The Oregon schools will be representative in all sports."

Some of the prospective members have expressed concern about their ability to compete in football with the Washington members but the conference is optimistic that they will be able to compete and by improving their standards will create a better league.

While the Whitworth withdrawal looked like a serious blow the timing was such that Evergreen Conference growth is still imminent and the formal announcement of a seven member league for 1971-2 should be made in about two weeks during the Evergreen Conference meeting.

The Savages Track and Field team travels to Walla Walla Saturday to participate in the Martin Invitational meet.

Eastern placed third last Saturday in the 22nd Annual Vancouver Relays in Vancouver B.C. The meet featured some of the finest track and field personnel from Washington, Oregon and Western Canada.

The Savage's lone win came when Curt Hisaw vaulted 15' 1 1/2", his best for the season. Paul Rousser placed fourth in that event. Hisaw placed fourth in the open 110-meter high hurdles.

Eastern's Tennis team meets Whitman in Walla Walla Friday and hosts Washington State Saturday in a match on Eastern's court.

The Savages lost to Whitworth, 5-4, Monday.

Butch Tomlinson, Whitworth, defeated Eastern Scott Green, 6-0, 6-0. In other matches, Bruce Grogan, Whitworth, defeated Dennis Nelson, Eastern, 6-2 and 7-5; Joe Dennison, Whitworth beat Walt Tobey, Eastern, 6-2, 11-9; Keith Watson, Eastern, beat Gary Heasell, Whitworth, 6-1, 6-0; and Jack Bennell, Eastern, defeated Whitworth's Steve Hilmes, 6-4, 6-0.

In doubles play, Whitworth's number one team, Haymond-Tomlinson defeated Eastern's Marden-Tobey, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3; Grogan-Dennison, Whitworth, beat Green-Wilson, Eastern, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4; and Eastern's number three team, Watson-Bennell downed Heasell-Hilmes, Whitworth, 6-3, 6-1.

Dave Powledge placed third in the shotput with a toss of 54' 1 1/4" about 3 1/2' shy of the first place distance.

Ed Fisher, who barely scratched on a 24-foot try, placed fourth in the long jump with a leap of 22' 8 1/2".

Another Eastern record was set by Barry Jahn, who ran to fourth place in the 3,000 meter steeplechase in a time of 9:24.2. This time qualified Jahn for the National Athletic Intercollegiate Association meet to be held in Billings, Montana, in June.

In the 4 x 100 meter sprint relay Eastern hung on to finish fourth in spite of Mike Greenwood's pulled muscle on the anchor leg of the run.

Bronc Win
For Hap

Mike Haptanstell continued his lead in the Northwest in the saddle bronc riding by winning that event in the second annual Washington State University intercollegiate rodeo Saturday.

Haptanstell was the only winner for Eastern in the rodeo that was won by Montana State University.

Rodeos are held weekly at several of the sixteen colleges in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, to determine who will represent the Northwest at the regionals at Blue Mountain Community College, Pendleton, Oregon, and the National finals at Bozeman, Montana.

Haptanstell is Eastern's prime home for the National Intercollegiate Saddle Bronc Championship.

Roundballers
Still At It

What does a basketball player do in the off-season? He plays basketball.

Eastern's varsity players and next season's varsity prospects are participating in spring league basketball on Mondays and Wednesdays at the Fieldhouse.

Going into today's play at 4 p.m., a team composed of varsity men George Gamble and Steve Barnett, and non-varsity players Gale Allen and Bud Cave are leading the round robin play with a 5-2 record. Team one, Randy Buss, Duane Barnette, Mark Martin and Rod Thompson, and team three, Ray Maggard, Barry Holsinger, Jack Burns and Gary Sooy, are tied for second with 4-3 record. Team four, Dean Schwartz, Kevin Brooks, Skip Smyser and Ray Merritt, have one win and six losses.

A win is based on the best two of three games per day in half-court play to 15 points.

Intramurals
Set In May

Several Intramural events are scheduled this month including the softball tournament that is planned for tonight. The championship will conclude the intramural softball season.

Other scheduled events are: A swim meet tomorrow night at 3:30 in the Field house pool. Both men and women teams are expected to participate.

A golf tournament will be held May 19, at Hangman Valley in Spokane. Tee-off times will be between 1-4 p.m. Teams consisting of our or more players in the 18-hole event will compete with the four best scores on each team, regardless of the number of members, counting toward the total. Registration for both men and women golfers will be accepted until May 15.

The Men's Track Meet will be held Tuesday, May 26, at Woodward Field at 3:30. Entries are due no later than May 22. Competition will take place in all events.

Baseball

Eastern Regroups For Nine Pirates

The Eastern Savages will be out to improve the Evergreen Conference Baseball record this Saturday in a doubleheader with the Whitworth Pirates in Spokane, starting 12:30.

The Savages are in third place while Whitworth is in the Ev Co cellar.

Rookie coach Ron Raver, smarting for four losses in two weeks to league-leading Central, knows his team must win this pair and the doubleheader with Western May 16 to be in contention for second place.

"Now that we finally have some good baseball weather, we're going to regroup and win some ball games," Raver said. "We want to try to finish strong and carry the momentum into next spring."

Raver will start Dick Rousseau in the opener with Whitworth and Don Freeman in the nightcap.

Eastern lost a pair to Central, 8-2 and 10-2, last Saturday "Central bunted us to death in the fourth inning of the second game when they got four base hit bunts and scored six runs in that inning," Raver said.

Central pitching ace Dave Heaverlo picked up his ninth win of the season in the opener to remain undefeated, and almost assured Central of another Evergreen championship. The Wildcats need just one more win to claim the title. The battle for second place, meanwhile, is between Eastern and Western.

Women Make Tracks For Western Meet

Ten Eastern track and field women will leave for Bellingham to compete in the Northwest College Women's Extramural Association Saturday.

The gals soundly defeated Central, 71-47, last weekend in a dual meet at Woodward Stadium in Cheney.

Becky Nelson placed first in the high jump, 5'4"; the long jump, 16'6½"; and the 100 meter hurdles, 16.6. She placed second in the javelin, at 105'5¼".

Nancy Snyder scored two firsts, the shot put at 33'10¼"; and the javelin, 114'8½"; and second in the discus, 96'4¾".

Dee Stoneback placed first in the 440-yard dash, 1:01.1; and the 220-yard run, 27.1. She scored second place in the long jump at 16'6¼"; and a time of 11.8 in the 100 yard dash.

Diane Astle took second place in the 880-yard run, 2:50.9 and the mile, 6:49.0. Grace Willey was second in the 200 meter hurdles and third in the 100 meter hurdles.

Eastern's other third place finishes were: Eileen Mathews in the Hi jump; Barb Banger in the shot and the discus; and Nancy Holder in the mile.

Eastern's team also placed first in the 4 x 110 relay and the 880-medley relay.

In the first running of the 100 yard dash, Miss Stonebeck placed first, but an official's error, the dash and to be re-run and Central won it with Miss Stonebeck second.

Savages Presence Felt On Green

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles highlighting Eastern's Spring Sports Schedule.)

The Savage golfers are preparing for the toughest competition of the year as they host the Eastern Washington Collegiate Invitational Golf Tournament Tomorrow at Hangman Valley and Friday at Indian Canyon, Spokane.

The Savages are not expected to win their tourney with such outstanding NCAA teams Oregon, the favorite, Portland State, defending champs, Washington State, Banana Belt Champions, Whitman, Northwest Conference champs, to name just a few of the 13 teams entered, but will certainly make their presence felt.

Eastern's golf team, coached by Don Kallem, is led by Fred Lufkin, the Savages number one player, whose golf achievements are to numerous to elaborate, but whose major accomplishments include: second place in the National Public Links Tournament last year, his second year to qualify. Last year he led the field going into the last hole. Lufkin, one of the top amateurs in the Northwest, is a member of the Hudson Cup. He was NAIA All-American in 1968 and has played on two Eastern championship teams. Lufkin, who won the Spokane City championship twice, Esmerelda Amateurs championship twice, and the Liberty Lake Amateur championship, has a scratch handicap. He plans to try to qualify for the U.S. Open June 18. The two low scorers in the Northwest, pro and amateur, qualify.

Bud Davis played in two district championships for Eastern. Davis has won several local tournaments including the Thunderbird at Clarkston. He was a member of the Chronicle Cup in 1969, and is club champ at Down River.

Gary Lindeblad, a sophomore who played on last year's championship team for Eastern, also played in Nationals at Ft. Worth, Texas last year. He also played in the National juniors at Brookline, Massachusetts.

Bruce Brevet, another sophomore, who played for Eastern in the conference and district tournaments last year, also played in the Fort Worth Nationals. Brevet, a hot and cold golfer, came on strong at the end of last season at Eastern, and is doing so again this year. Monday he was medalist with a 69, three under par.

Bob Lanning is a Service veteran who played in the Nationals at Rockford, Illinois, in 1964.

Chuck Boyk has not played much, but is a vastly improved golfer who is hitting in the mid to high 70s.

Eastern Golfers Open Invitational Tomorrow

The Eastern Invitational Golf Tournament opens tomorrow and Friday, with the first round at Hangman Valley and Friday's play at Indian Canyon.

Thirteen teams are scheduled to participate in the annual event, including Oregon, the favorite and Portland State, the defending champion.

Last year's medalist, Rick Carpenter, University of Montana, will also play. Other teams entered in addition to the host team include: Washington, Washington State, Montana State, Idaho, Gonzaga, Seattle University, Whitman and Whitworth.

Monday, Eastern tied Idaho, 9-9, and beat Whitworth 13-5 and Gonzaga, 15½-2½.

Medalist was Eastern's Bruce Brevet, with a 69. Fred Lufkin, Eastern, and Mike Garbinger, Idaho, scored 70; Gary Lindeblad, Eastern and Rick Spoeth, Idaho, tied for third with 71's; Mark Cooper, of Idaho, was fourth with a 72; Steve Tucker of Idaho scored a 73, and Eastern's Bob Lanning and Idaho's Don Seeley tied for sixth with 74's.

Last Friday Washington State recorded three victories and the Savages won two of three matches in the four-way collegiate play in Spokane's Indian Canyon.

The Cougars, who beat Eastern 12½-5½, also defeated Whitworth, Gonzaga for first place.

The Savages defeated Gonzaga 15½-2½ and Whitworth 17-1. Gonzaga edged Whitworth 9½-8½.

Lufkin, Eastern and Jim Frye, WSU, were co-medalists with 69's. Greg Strate and Bruce Brevet of the Savages, finished in a four-way tie for fourth place.

Students Favor State Wide Reorganization

A measure to consider reorganization of the Student Washington Education Association, proposed and carried through by Eastern delegates, was passed at the state convention held in Ellensburg April 25 and 26.

The controversial proposal called for the elimination of all state offices, organization of student associations into active districts and the establishment of a full-time consultant to coordinate state activities through local and state meetings.

An announcement by a spokesman for the parent organization, WEA, saying state officials are planning an attempt to deny student association voting rights in WEA conventions set off a reactionary step to finance expenses to attend a reconvened state WEA meeting. (Washington is one of the few states now allowing student associations)

The meeting, due before June 1, re-opens the state convention held at Seattle Center on April 17 and 18. The convention was adjourned because of a lack of a quorum when delegates walked out over a measure to raise membership fees to finance the load of measures proposed by the convention, said Robert Stange, Eastern SWEA president.

The reconvened meeting will allow measures to be taken on any issues brought before the April 17-18 meeting, including the measure to charge WEA board of directors to devise means of raising $1,000,000 for an emergency fund for potential direct action by teachers to "withdraw professional services".

Stange said he expected stronger wording of a resolution calling for the WEA board of directors to convene the WEA Representative Association within two weeks if the 1970 elections fail to pass the proposed tax reform package, "to consider all avenues of action including sanctions against the state of Washington".

Expansion Plans Threatens Life of Old Campus Trees

Proposed construction on a new academic hall threatens the existence of several decades-old evergreen trees, according to the present blueprint layout for the building.

Under present plans Ceylon S. Kingston Hall, the newly proposed multimillion dollar Business Department Center, which is scheduled for construction on the corner of 5th and C Streets, will force the destruction of nearly a dozen Pine and Fir trees.

Admitting that some trees would have to come out during building of Kingston Hall, Wayne W. Loomis, director of Facilities Planning, said the building had been "planned with the view in mind to save as many trees as we could."

However, Dr. Frank Nicol, chairman of the Biology Department said he didn't feel it was necessary to construct Kingston Hall at the present site of Eastern's Speech Clinic which will also come out when construction begins. He pointed out that there are more than 200 acres available for construction to the west of Eastern's Woodward Field.

Director of Planning and Development Kenneth K. Kennedy, explaining the reason behind the present proposed site, said it was chosen because of anticipation that there would be several evening classes in the building used by Spokane residents and it was necessary to have a location that could be easily found.

Dr. Nicol said that in his judgment this "meant the college is deliberately directing traffic away from the access road and across Cheney streets."

Loomis said that despite the removal of the trees he felt Kingston Hall would "add to the view of the area once it is completed." He also pointed out that there would "be a large number of trees which will remain on all sides of the building."

In addition to the removal of a number of Evergreen trees, C Street will be widened to make the new hall more easily accessible. This will eliminate a number of trees along the street and probably a portion of President Emerson C. Shuck's garage.

Dr. Nicol, the chief architect of Eastern's Earth Day activities pointed out that in addition to losing the scenery offered by the trees, the aid they offered in suppressing noise would also be lost. "It was recently reported that a 75 foot stretch of trees cuts noise by 50 percent," he said, "and an additional 15 percent curtailment occurs if grass grows under trees."

The Walter W. Isle Memorial Rose Garden was removed from its old site near the speech clinic because of proposed construction, but instead of being destroyed like the trees the rose bushes are being transplanted elsewhere on campus.

Dr. Nicol said a number of concerned citizens and staff members had carried their case to the Cheney Planning Commission, the city council, the board of directors of local school districts, and to various college administrators but that there had been no apparent success.

"It's most difficult to headoff the bureaucratic machinery once it's started in motion," he remarked, "it just doesn't change direction."

Indian Students Are Topic Of Weekend Conference Here

Wed., May 6, 1970

THE EASTERNER

"The self concepts of Indian students is often the product of white attitudes." Mrs. Mary F. Nelson, director of Eastern's Education Program, this expressed one of many points she will make this weekend concerning problems faced by American Indian Students.

Mr. Nelson made the statement in a prepared lecture she plans on giving this weekend before the second annual conference of Educators of American Indian Descent to be held at Eastern Friday and Saturday.

The lecture is designed to bring to light many of the problems facing the Indian student, primarily in the secondary and elementary institutions but which also apply to college students as well, Mrs. Nelson said.

In her planned lecture Mrs. Nelson says that while many Indian students are able to fulfill their education aims there are many who will not, and these are the ones that are trying to be reached.

This weekend's conference, during which more than a hundred persons are expected to attend, will attempt to stimulate more interest in Indian students and promote more work with them by Indian scholars.

"We also hope to promote unity among Indian scholars and to work on the development of the Associates, an inter-college organization formed in the Pacific Northwest this past month to benefit Indian students," Mrs. Nelson said.

The group, whose full title is the Indian Associates of the Pacific Northwest, when fully developed is programmed to funnel pertinent information to Indian groups. It was formed from ideas attained at a national conference held at Princeton University in March.

In her planned lecture Mrs. Nelson points out that pre-college schools attended by Indian students often exist in remote areas, city slums or government boarding schools. These schools often suffer from a number of problems including lack of adequate funds; control by non-Indians; a high rate of turnover by teachers; and, perhaps most important, "universally, the textbooks used today in schools do not adapt in any way whatsoever to Indians." In addition, she says, "there is a drastic need to train and develop interest in Indian people to work with their own people."

The theme of this weekend's conference, which will attempt to tie together many of the problems Mrs. Nelson will raise in her lecture, is "The American Indian: Determination and Education." Attending will be teachers from elementary to college level. Larry Nicodemus, a 60-year-old Eastern freshman from the Coeur d'Alene Tribe is scheduled to give the keynote address.

Other speakers at the conference will be Joe Williams, education specialist for the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Portland; Tandy Wilbur, a member of the Indian Action Committee from LaConner, Wash.; Richard N. Wilson, director of the Indian Education Program at the University of Oregon.

The conference will be concluded with a reverse panel discussion, chaired by Dr. Jack R. Ridley, professor of agriculture at the University of Idaho, in which everyone will be taking part.

OPERATING ONE OF THE PRESSES in the duplication center in the basement of Showalter Hall is Becky Lang. Duplication is the college's print shop, where most of the printing of programs, tickets and bulletins of the college is done. The center also will print student orders, for a fee.

Print Shop Does Many Jobs

Did you wonder who printed the Cowsill tickets you purchased last week?

Each ticket was processed in Duplicating and Stores located in the basement of Showalter Auditorium.

Duplicating (which contains an offset press, xerox machine, copier, mimeograph and ditto machines) provides printing, collating, folding, stapling, cutting and binding services to students and faculty. Stores stocks all office supplies used on campus.

"We don't do personal printing jobs or related work," said Mrs. Connie Loyd, duplicating services supervisor. "All of the work must be school related." This includes printing of tests to campaign posters during elections, as well as printing club minutes.

"When students want to use our order form, pay the cashiers office and return a receipt to us," Mrs. Loyd said.

Recently, Duplicating received a new printing machine called a copier, or master maker. Through a coping process, similar to that in a xerox machine, masters are made for the offset printing press.

"Before we had the copier, people had to make either a ditto, mimeo or multith master," said Mrs. Loyd. "Now, all we need is a typed copy of the desired master which we place in the copier. The copier transfers the typed copy on to a multith master." She said this process is less expensive and less time consuming.

Presently, Duplicating and Stores are asking to be moved into the games room of the Student Union Building upon completion of the Pence Union Building.

"If we move into the SUB we will be more centrally located on campus and will be near the post office, thus allowing us to work hand in hand with them," said Mrs. Loyd.

She said that duplicating could set up an addressing center moving present equipment and addressograph, graphotype and transfer printer into the games room.

"Under our present system material printed has to be delivered to the customer who then must address it and take it to the Post Office," she said. "If we could move into the games room and set up an addressing system, we could eliminate this time consuming process for the customer."

In a letter to Business Manager Fred Johns, Campus Services Manager Jim Bryan requested that Duplicating and Stores be relocated in the SUB because it would "be more centrally located and work with the post office would make mailing a more efficient and easy job for departments and students."

Utilization of the loading dock at the SUB would speed up loading materials (the basement location at Showalter doesn't make this an easy operation). It would also provide more storage space for stores, supplies and paper stock."

To Newlyweds

Sex Is Problem

By JOHN DAVIS
Copy Editor

Sex and money are the two most often-mentioned problems confronting newly married couples, according to Dr. Alfred Prince, associate professor of sociology.

Dr. Prince has had experience as a marriage and family counselor and as counselor of countless students at the University of Wisconsin and Washington State University. He taught at both of these institutions before coming to Eastern in 1963.

Nearly 50 articles on marriage and the family by Dr. Prince have been published in professional journals, popular magazines and discussion with the couples, Dr. Prince has found that the problems are different than those originally identified.

"Couples come to me with a money problem and it turns out to be a sex problem. Or a sex problem can really be a money or personality problem."

Students considering marriage most often present Dr. Prince with two problems. The first centers around the philosophy or personality of a partner. Also students often cannot decide if their choice of a mate is the right person for them and if it is the right time for marriage.

Certain things should be considered when choosing a mate," Dr. Prince said. Some of the reasons young people often cannot make the best selection are as follows: First, "Young people often think there is only one person for them. Unless bells ring when they embrace, they decide that person isn't for them. This romantic conception of love is actually a new concept - our grandparents were much more objective in selecting a mate."

Another reason is that "we confuse sexual attraction for love. Sex attraction often takes the place of more stable qualities we ought to be looking for in a mate. People after a time have the habit of putting on weight, skin becomes wrinkled, and men may bald."

Lastly, "young persons often narrow the field of selection too early. Students begin going steady in high school and miss out on many experiences they should have at this age. Also, if a couple marry just out of high school or before they have had a chance to go to college or work they again miss valuable experiences."

newspapers. Results of his research findings are included in most college texts on marriage and the family.

Marital problems encountered at Eastern, said Dr. Prince, seem to be no different than those of couples in other areas of the country.

Sex and money are the two most often mentioned problems that couples identify in marriage counseling sessions, said Dr. Prince. Often though, after some

Gov't Program Aids Research

A new federal program to support research projects initiated, planned, and directed by students is being planned by the National Science Foundation. The research should be aimed at solving some of the problems of present society, said John Fahey, coordinator of research assistance.

The Foundation supports research in the natural and social sciences by awards to institutions on the basis of proposals submitted by an investigator.

The Foundation is organizing a student-originated studies program to review proposals from students, routed through their institutions, which attack either a single problem or a group of related problems in the areas of physical, biological, or social environment. Projects should begin after July 1, 1970.

Assistance in submitting proposals in the Foundation's format is available in Showalter 303, he said.

Protesters Demand ROTC Removal

MASSES OF PEOPLE gather in front of the SUB preceding the march and confrontation in front of the ROTC Building. Several speakers presented their views during this rally, including Thomas Chambers, professor of sociology. Various viewpoints were expressed in the gathering immediately after noon. Most speakers advocated an end to the war in Vietnam and all said they abhorred the violence shown at Kent State University.

IRKSINE STURGES, raises his hand in a protest gesture during a sudden seige on Eastern's ROTC Building. An estimated 300 students made the march protesting the war in Southeast Asia and the firing by National Guard troops into a group of Kent State University students Monday in which four students were killed and a dozen injured.
